1) 単語を建材とし文法をセメントとして文章を組み立てるではなく、他の人間との会話のなかから文を拾い、間違いつつ適切な文の使い方を身につけてゆく例が紹介されている。従って、学習者が使いやすい文をあらかじめ教材にして、それを覚えてゆくことが学ぶ側にとっても教える側にとっても望ましい。また間違えることによって適切な用例や適切な状況を見つけだすのだから、間違いを恐れぬ姿勢を持つことが大切となる。

2) Agree:

I agree with the statement because I think that more natural learning helps me to remember new language faster and better.

Firstly, we learn things faster because these methods use our natural learning abilities. When I try to learn words from lists I forget them easily, but if I try to use them in a conversation then I can remember them.

Secondly, I think that I remember my mistakes in a conversation better because they are embarrassing, so I try harder not to make them again in the future. This is the natural way that we learn our first language.

In conclusion, I think that memorizing new words is helpful, but until I try to use them in conversation or writing I cannot use them effectively. So I think more natural methods are faster and better. (136 words)

Disagree:

I disagree with the statement because I think that more natural methods take a long time.

I use word cards to learn new words so I can learn a lot of words very quickly. In an hour of hard study I can learn the meanings of forty or fifty new words by practicing them over and over again.

On the other hand, if I hear a new word in a conversation, I forget it very quickly because I only hear it one time and I may not hear it again for a long time.

It takes a person a long time to learn their first language. Most children can speak well by six years old, but reading and writing take about twelve years of school to master.

In conclusion, study lets us learn a lot of words quickly, but natural methods take a very long time. (146 words)
