I agree with the opinion that young people spending more and more time on the internet will have a bad influence on them. There are two main reasons why I think this way. Recently I read an article about “gaming addiction.” It said, people who spend too much time gaming online become addicted. The second reason is that staring at a PC screen for too long causes headaches and eye problems. These two examples may sound minor, but they may cause problems for young people in the future.
