解答例

Although university life should be centered on academic study, I also recommend having a part-time job for three reasons. First, working gives you a chance to earn your own money. This reduces dependence on parents and gives you more freedom to live and spend as you want. Second, you will get a new workplace social group. You can learn about real life from various types of people outside the university. Finally, work encourages financial and time management skills while developing a work ethic. These skills will serve you for the rest of your working life. In conclusion, for financial, social, and developmental reasons, I recommend a part-time job. (108 words)
